EMPLOYABILITY SKILLS IN ACTION

As you watch 'The Pursuit of Happyness', provide examples from the movie showing how Chris Gardner exemplifies each of the employability skills. Reference the specific characteristic from your notes and describe a detailed scene and example below.

Career Development	Communication
Chris demonstrates determination and career planning. Despite his financial difficulties, he applies for an internship at Dean Witter and studies hard to become a stockbroker. He sees the internship as an opportunity to build a better future.	Chris communicates confidently and effectively during his interview. When he arrives wearing casual clothes after being arrested for unpaid parking tickets, he uses humor and honesty to explain the situation and make a positive impression.
Ethics & Legal	Foundational
Chris demonstrates honesty and integrity. He is honest with his son about their difficult situation and does not give up his responsibilities as a father. He also respects the rules and expectations of the internship program.	Chris uses essential skills such as mathematics, reading, writing, and time management. He quickly learns how to use the company's systems, studies financial information, and memorizes important phone numbers to work more efficiently.
Interpersonal	Leadership
Chris demonstrates empathy, patience, and respect. He maintains a loving relationship with his son, Christopher, listens to him, and supports him emotionally, even during extremely difficult moments.	Chris takes responsibility for his son's well-being and makes important decisions for their future. He encourages Christopher to believe in himself and teaches him not to give up on his dreams.
Problem Solving & Critical Thinking	Teamwork
Chris finds creative solutions to everyday problems. For example, he develops a strategy to contact more potential clients by making calls more efficiently and avoiding unnecessary activities during working hours.	Chris collaborates with his colleagues and works alongside the other interns. He understands the importance of professional relationships and builds connections with people at Dean Witter.
